Showers and thunderstorms possible again today with high temperatures forecast to climb into the upper 80s.

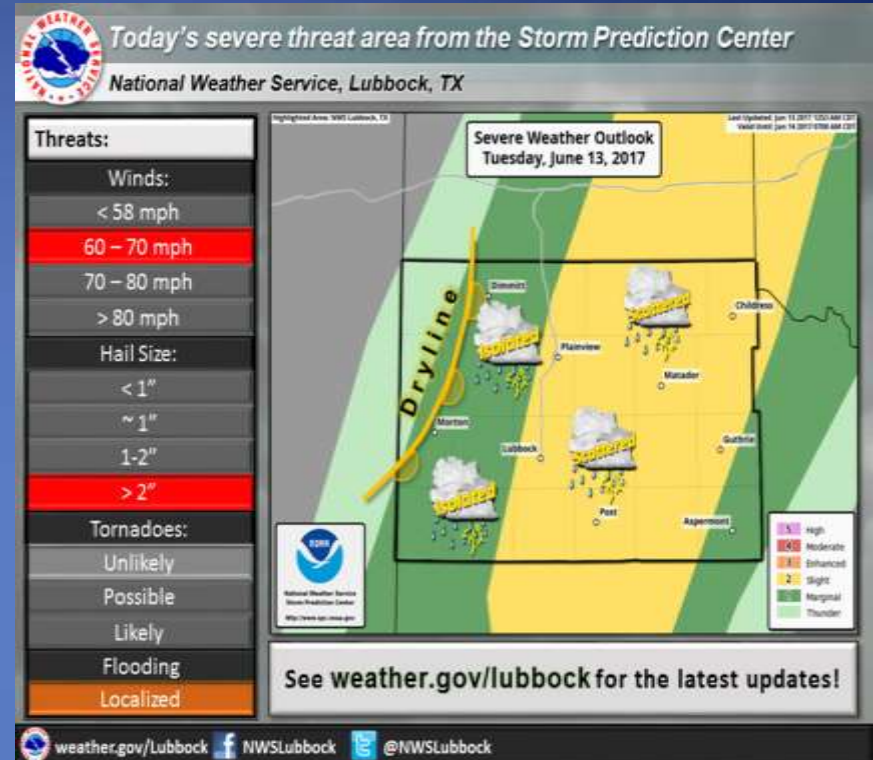

The Rio Grande Valley and the rest of Deep South Texas can expect partly cloudy skies today with a chance for isolated rain showers to the east of Highway 281. Hot conditions are expected otherwise with temperatures ranging from the lower 90s along the coast to the low 100s across the upper Valley and Zapata county. The rain chances are expected to be higher across the coastal gulf waters where a few isolated thunderstorms may be possible. Mariners otherwise are to expect southeasterly winds today with a building chop on the bay and gulf seas of 3 to 6 feet. Small craft should exercise caution on the Laguna Madre and across the gulf waters from 20 to 60 nautical miles out

Hazardous Weather

Strong to severe storms expected today for the central and eastern Panhandles. Hail and damaging wind will be the primary threat with some localized heavy rain possible.

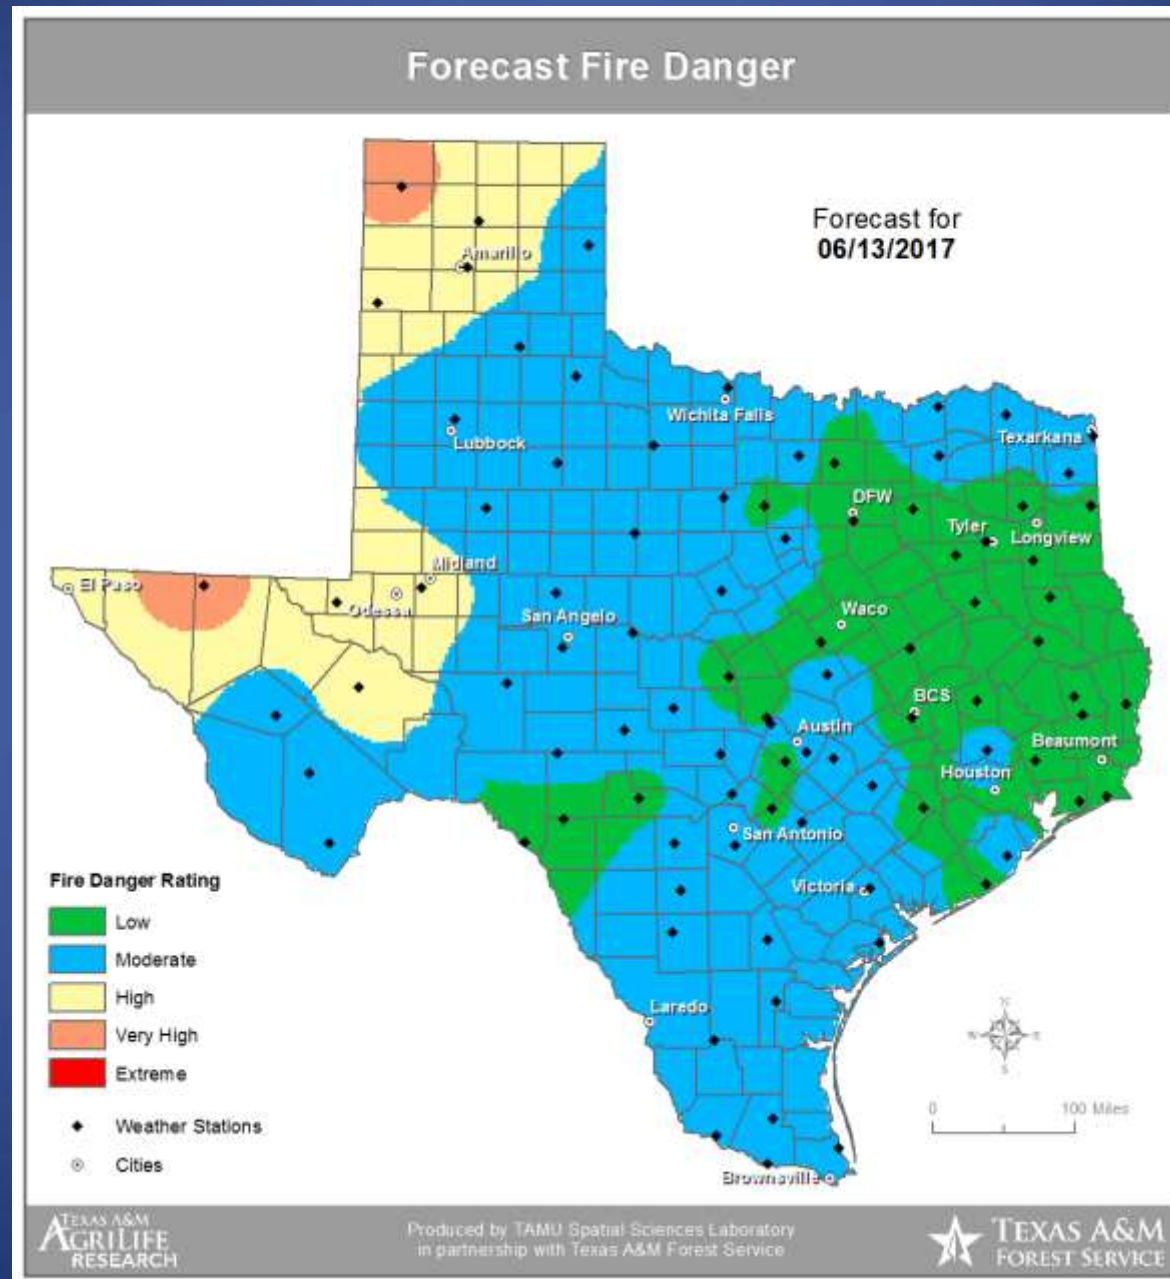

Thunderstorms are expected to develop across much of the South Plains area this afternoon and evening. Some severe weather is likely with these storms, including the potential for very large hail.
